WHEN THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR ABOLISH THE MIDDLEMEN.

A Scheme To Be Introduced at the Richmond Convention That Has a Big Future Before It If It Works—Wisconsin Given Another State Ticket To Vote For—Edmunds on Current Topics.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—At the general meeting of the Knights of Labor to be held in Richmond next month, there will be submitted a plan looking to the lessening of the cost of producing, distributing and consuming, that is used and consumed by the great mass of the people. The project comprises the establishment of the outfit of a great central depot in New York city, to be controlled by the general executive council of the Knights of Labor, and to be used as an agent or intermediary in the transaction of business between the producer and consumer, and the distribution of goods, thus doing away with the middlemen, and thereby saving to the consumer the cost of the middleman's profit.

The plan, it is argued, if it works well in the shoe trade, must work equally well in the hat trade, groceries, clothing, and, in fact, everything that the workingman is in need of. Then, again, it is argued that the central depot, necessarily becoming a vast shipper of freight, the railroads and other transportation companies would, in order to get its business, give special rates, and in this way make an additional saving to the consumer. The scheme is as yet in embryo, but by the time the convention meets in Richmond it will be in shape to present to that body for consideration.

OUR VETERANS.

BY MARIAN JULIET MITCHELL.

Come "really round the flag" again, ye veterans of the war!

And may your time be as when you marched to fields afar.

No doubt you have been to meet as in the days of yore;

But honored courtesy here may greet, And tell your stories o'er.

No cloud of war our land alarms, That cloud has passed away;

We have not now the call "to arms!" Not hastened to obey.

We can't forget, amid our joys, The time well known to all;

When you, our brave Wisconsin boys, Responded to the "call."

And when that latest hour had come, To leave your homes, so dear;

You marched away, with fire and drum, Not any to drop a tear.

Sad tears were shed by those you left; And many a heart was sore;

Went on from time, of joy bereft, Who turned to homes so dear.

But some who went, ah, where are they— Your comrades brave and true?

Who marched beside you on that day? We seek them not with you!

Kind summer, o'er their honored heads, Strews fragrant drifts of snow;

And winter, with its cold winds, spreads its snow, in heavy drifts.

Their names, with those of heroes great Who well their country served,

Are brought to mind by the ship of State, Through time shall be preserved.

And you who gather here today, From our comrades old and new,

Let not one star be wiped away, Nor ever let it die.

Forever may it proudly float O'er all our native land;

And so to nations most remote, The strength of Freedom's hand.

And should the monster Treason dare! And to rise to the aid of her;

May our brave "Brave Badger Boys" be there, By Union forces led.

At the close of the services the remains were taken to Catholic cemetery for interment, the pall bearers being chosen from among the intimate friends of the family.

—The annual inspection of the Bower City Rifles occurred at their armory last evening. Col. Chas. King, of the governor's staff, being the inspecting officer. The Rifles "showed up" fifty-two men out of a possible sixty. Col. King subjected the company to a severe drill test, putting them through nearly all the maneuvers of the manual, occupying nearly three hours time. The company stood the test in fine shape, and Captain Koeblich has cause to be proud of his company, and the company of their captain.

Personal.

WORDS: WORDS! WORDS!!!

More Pleasant Criticisms Upon Our Town Words.

To the Editor.

A woman said to me the other day: "I reckon you will not write any more about words."

I replied: "Yes, I calculate to write more very soon." Reckon and calculate have almost the same meaning, and are constantly misused.

Calculate means to work out by figures, reckon means to count, compute. The translators of the New Testament use it a few times, in the sense of reckon, without any good reason for so doing. Do not say, "I reckon," "I calculate," when you mean to say: "I believe," "I think," "I suppose."

I went into one of our hotels recently and while there a neatly dressed man came in with a fine looking woman.

They were husband and wife. The gentleman registered. I looked later to see how it was done, "Mr. R. and lady."

Now in doing that he did an injustice to his wife. He robbed her of her proper dignity and title, for the sake of a little affection. A man may travel with a lady that is not his wife. It is certainly unjust to leave a wife under a doubt.

The ladies call rubber over shoes "rubbers." Why not call their under-shoes "moroccoses," "leathers" or "kicks." I once heard a lady say: "Wait until I wipe off my gums." As she had not eaten anything for some hours, I was at a loss to know what she meant, until she began to "wipe off" her rubber over-shoes. They call "kid gloves," "kicks." Why not call other kinds of gloves, my cottons, my wooleens, my silks, my dogs, etc.

I go to church occasionally and hear the people speak of their preacher or pastor as a "minister." As he is not a state officer, representing the government in a foreign country, why do they call him a minister? Why do they not call him our pastor—a feeder, a shepherd, from "pastor," I feed.

I hear the preacher say: "My opinion is predicated on the doctrine," etc. Now he does not mean to say [that], but rather that his opinion is based or formed upon the belief. Predicate means to assert or affirm something of anything, or to ascribe a quality to it. Thus, we may predicate weakness of snow, blackness of pitch and somnolence of vinegar. The church of Rome predicate of the Pope that he is infallible, upon the dogma established by the general council.

Now, Mr. Editor, I come to the intricacy of literature; the plural unit, the myna; the incorporate mya solis. First person singular. Can any one tell me why, editors, preachers and lawyers so twist and torture the pronoun I, why should any one speak of himself as we; as though there were a hundred voices in his own. I am told, that this is done out of pure modesty. Modesty indeed, I is next to none. Is it more modest, for a man to call himself twenty, than one.

I often hear young people call aged people "Old man," "Old woman." Now there is nothing essentially wrong in these terms of expression, and yet there is an undertone of vulgarity and disrespect in them, that offends the refined ear. This undertone is deep enough, my young friends, to touch the heart of an old gentleman or an old lady. Let the eyes of age look meekly into your eyes, the voice of age echo meekly in the through it, and the grey head and the feeble hand of age plead not in vain for your sympathy.

In my last article I did not say, the study of words was "weighted." I said it was "neglected." JOSEPH.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

Washington Mills, of the Town of Rock, killed by the Cars.

Last evening at about 8:30 o'clock, Mr. Washington Mills, residing about a mile and a half northwest of Atton, was run over by a southbound train on the Chicago and Northwestern railway and instantly killed. It appears that Mr. Mills attended the fair in this city yesterday returning home to Atton in the evening. A few minutes before the accident happened he left the depot on foot for his home, walking upon the track; he had proceeded only about three quarters of a mile when he was struck by the engine, which was a special returning from the Madison fair. He was not noticed by the engineer, the first warning being felt by the engineer as the wheels passed over the unfortunate man. The victim of the accident was out in two by the wheels passing over his body. His remains were picked up and conveyed to his home. Mr. Mills was about thirty-three years of age, and had resided in the town of Rock for some fifteen years, and enjoyed a large circle of friends in that vicinity. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn the loss of a husband and father.

The inquest will probably be held to-morrow. Stories that the death was caused by foul play are being circulated though do not receive much credence.

Of those who die from consumption inherit the disease. In all other cases must either be contracted through carelessness; or, according to the new theory of tubercular parasites, received directly from others as an infectious disease. But in either case, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a positive remedy for the disease in its early stages. It is daily that is dangerous. If you are troubled with shortness of breath, spitting of blood, night sweats or a lingering cough, do not hesitate to procure this sovereign remedy at once.

THE VETERAN'S DAY.

A Reunion of Three Hundred Old Soldiers at the Fair.

Governor Rank and Other Well Known Speakers Present.

A Good Programme.

The shower yesterday afternoon did not prevent the assembling of a good sized audience to listen to Senator John C. Spooner, at the fair. Senator Spooner, touched upon most of the questions that are of the greatest importance to farmers on this day. He referred to the defects in the oleomargarine bill and gave the farmer a common sense talk on their occupation. He was strongly in favor of agricultural colleges and believed there should be a separate school for the education of the farmer as well as for the doctor, the lawyer or the preacher. The lawyer was a necessity to every well regulated community. Everyone knows that we could not get along without the doctor, yet he believed it was of more importance to educate the farmer [to his profession than either the doctor or the lawyer. Farmers did not hold their occupation in high enough esteem. There were too many boys who wanted to leave the farm, where their fathers had lived and where many of them would die, to enter the law office or the store instead of following in the footsteps of their paternal ancestor. He said that you could not expect to send a boy to school and have him come out a farmer, and with all the knowledge of the business where he was training with twenty other boys who were studying to become lawyers. He disliked to hear that, the orator had kept the farmer away from the polls at election time and he hoped the time would come when the farmer would take the place of the lawyer in politics. He considered farming more important than the law.

Senator Spooner's remarks were loudly applauded and were received with much favor by the hazy-headed agriculturists.

The ball game in the afternoon which was between Janesville Mutuals and the Beloit Blues resulted in favor of the former club. The score stood 13 to 12, and the Beloit men intimated that the umpire was the best player that their opponents had.

The foot race between Collins, of Edgerton, and Hart of Fort Atkinson for a purse of $150 made more excitement than anything else during the afternoon. Collins won easily, and the money that Hart's backers had put up in such abundance went to enrich the coffers of Edgerton men.

Among the exhibits in the domestic hall there are none more worthy of notice than those of Bort, Bailey & Co. and J. M. Dostwick & Sons. These firms seem to have vied with each other in making an attractive show and the result proves that they have succeeded. The goods displayed are of the richest description and crowd more especially of the gentler sex are there most of the time.

At ten o'clock this morning, the veterans formed in line, numbering several hundred, and with the Milton Cornet band of Milton, and the Broadhead Cornet band, of Broadhead, escorted Governor J. M. Rank to the fair grounds. Governor Rank was accompanied by Justice W. P. Lyon, of the supreme court, Secretary of State E. G. Timme, and Mayor Winans, of this city. In the other carriage were Past Grand Commander Phil. Cheek and several Grand Army officers. The procession was an imposing one. The veterans of the army posts at Milton, Broadhead and Janesville were the only ones represented by the banners, as organizations, although there were many veterans of other organizations in the line. At the fair grounds ranks were broken and the old soldiers crowded around "Little Phil" to shake hands, while the governor was surrounded by another group. They at once entered the grand stand and until noon there was a crowd passing to and fro around the distinguished ones.

The programme for this afternoon is a remarkably good one and the crowd on the grounds is the largest that there has been this week. The veterans who were there number fully three hundred and some of the meetings between old friends this morning were very affecting.

A newsboy who was eating away at a yellow banana, while he had two red ones stuffed into his pockets, was approached by another and asked:

"Did you get that tintype took for ten cents?"

"Naw."

"Too cloudy?"

"Naw! I was on my way to the gallery when bananas dropped to three for ten cents, and I took advantage of the decline. Tintypes are still 10 cents, but bananas broke up and down."—Detroit Free Press.
